

Book and Film Series

EXPLORING THE COMPLEXITY OF

RACISM

Book Discussion Facilitators

Barbara Landis Chase: York resident; educational consultant; former teacher and Head of School at Phillips Academy, Andover, where she taught a seminar on Abolitionism; former Brown University Trustee; York Public Library Trustee.

Cheryl Townsend Gilkes: Professor of African American Studies and Sociology and director of the program at Colby College; ordained minister and assistant pastor. Her research, teaching and writing focus on roles of African American women in modern times; her writings are widely published.

Kim Kelsey: Eliot resident, recently retired from UNH social work faculty; a licensed clinical social worker and therapist with deep experience assessing and treating children, adolescents and adults, especially those with histories of trauma.

Ron McAllister: Co-founder and chair of York Community Dialogue and chair of the York Village Study Committee; retired Professor of Sociology and Anthropology and Director of the Graduate School, Northeastern University; former Provost Emeritus, Elizabethtown College. Has written about ethnicity and urban communities.

Julie Weiss: Lives in Eliot and is a hospice social worker, historian, writer, editor, educational consultant, former teacher at UNH and Middlesex Community College. Developed curriculum and instructional materials for K-12 classrooms on American history and a statewide civil rights history project.

Susan Yorston: A York resident, she is a former Library board member and well-known educator, discussion leader, lecturer and program coordinator. She has taught in public and private schools around New England and helped develop educational programs on Native Americans, African Americans and women.

Book and Film Series

EXPLORING THE COMPLEXITY OF

RACISM

Book Discussion Facilitators

Barbara Landis Chase: York resident; educational consultant; former teacher and Head of School at Phillips Academy, Andover, where she taught a seminar on Abolitionism; former Brown University Trustee; York Public Library Trustee.

Cheryl Townsend Gilkes: Professor of African American Studies and Sociology and director of the program at Colby College; ordained minister and assistant pastor. Her research, teaching and writing focus on roles of African American women in modern times; her writings are widely published.

Kim Kelsey: Eliot resident, recently retired from UNH social work faculty; a licensed clinical social worker and therapist with deep experience assessing and treating children, adolescents and adults, especially those with histories of trauma.

Ron McAllister: Co-founder and chair of York Community Dialogue and chair of the York Village Study Committee; retired Professor of Sociology and Anthropology and Director of the Graduate School, Northeastern University; former Provost Emeritus, Elizabethtown College. Has written about ethnicity and urban communities.

Julie Weiss: Lives in Eliot and is a hospice social worker, historian, writer, editor, educational consultant, former teacher at UNH and Middlesex Community College. Developed curriculum and instructional materials for K-12 classrooms on American history and a statewide civil rights history project.

Susan Yorston: A York resident, she is a former Library board member and well-known educator, discussion leader, lecturer and program coordinator. She has taught in public and private schools around New England and helped develop educational programs on Native Americans, African Americans and women.